

Dianne Armstrong Scholarship for Future Nurses

Dianne Armstrong's love of becoming a nurse started at 3 years old, when her father gave her a nurse's kit complete with the nurses' hat, stethoscope, blood pressure cuff, and the best part of all, the make believe "shots". She was thrilled and decided on the spot that she was going to be a nurse someday! This dream followed her to her first job at 17 years old, when she was hired as a nurse aide at a local hospital for $2.06 an hour! She worked her way through Carroll on a nurse aide salary and graduated in 1977. She retired from that same hospital 48 years later. In the latter part of her career she began to think about a legacy. With that in mind she set up scholarships at St. Peter's Health and Helena College for future nurses with that same dream!
